

Dr. Denis Çelçima is an Assistant Professor of Psychology at UBT College, where she teaches courses in introductory psychology, personality psychology, and social psychology. She holds a PhD in Psychology–Pedagogy and brings more than 20 years of experience in education, teaching, training, and career counseling across both Kosovo and Albania.

Her research focuses on adolescent mental health, academic motivation, empathy, bullying and cyberbullying, as well as the impact of online learning on student well-being. Dr. Çelçima has published several peer-reviewed studies on these topics and actively participates in national and international conferences, summer academies, and educational projects.

She is also engaged in community and youth initiatives, serving as a speaker on mental health, women's empowerment, and digitalization in education. Her work reflects a strong commitment to improving the educational experience and supporting the psychological development of young people.